

Paul Diefenbach has been the Data Manager since March 2005. He has a BA in Sociology and a BA in Statistics from Michigan State University. From 1975 to 2002 he was a statistician for the Michigan Department of Human Services. He worked primarily on the federal Quality Control system but also was involved in many special projects. His main duties were sample design, data analysis, report writing, system monitoring and forms design.

After taking early retirement from the state, he had seasonal jobs with a tax preparation service and an educational testing company.
