The Honorable Debbie Stabenow
United States Senate
Washington, D.C.

Re: Strengthen and Protect SNAP/Food Stamps in the 2012 Farm Bill

Dear Chairwoman Stabenow:

As constituent groups representing the 1.84 million SNAP recipients in Michigan and the many other low-income and food insecure people in our state, we urge you to protect SNAP and to strengthen the program. In particular, we urge you to support proposals in the Farm Bill to ensure that Michigan households have the resources to purchase a nutritionally adequate diet by increasing benefit adequacy; and we urge you to oppose proposals to cap or reduce funding, restrict eligibility or reduce benefits in SNAP, including the proposal to alter the “heat and eat” state option. Proposed changes to that option would take meals away from tens of thousands of Michigan households.

Households are facing impossible choices among food, home heating, gasoline, rent, medicine and other basic needs. Millions continue to struggle with hunger, as documented by food hardship data collected by Gallup and analyzed by the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC). Nearly one in five Americans said there were times they didn’t have enough money to buy food that they or their families needed in 2011. No state was immune from this challenge: in Michigan, 18.1 percent of households told Gallup in 2011 that they struggled in this way. Rates for families with children are higher.

We appreciate your longstanding commitment to meeting the needs of vulnerable Americans. You have been a voice for compassion and for recognizing the many ways in which targeted and adequate public supports—in nutrition programs and otherwise—make families, communities and the nation stronger. We are asking for you to continue this work in the Farm Bill process.

For decades, SNAP has enjoyed strong bipartisan support and has helped ensure the poorest and hungriest people in our nation can put food on the table. If it is weakened, many millions of older Americans, people with disabilities, children, struggling parents – working and unemployed – and others will suffer, and the nation will see more hunger and food insecurity, worse health and educational outcomes, and higher health costs. SNAP’s responsiveness to unemployment proved it to be one of the most effective safety net programs during the recent recession, providing families with a stable source of food.

SNAP is targeted to the most vulnerable people in our communities. The average beneficiary household has an income of only 57 percent of the federal poverty guideline; and 84 percent of all benefits go to households with a child, senior, or disabled person. SNAP lifted 3.9 million Americans above the poverty line in 2010, including 1.7 million children and 280,000 seniors.

The strengths of the SNAP program led every bipartisan deficit group in 2010-2011 to insulate it from cuts. The Simpson-Bowles and Domenici-Rivlin commissions recommended no cuts in SNAP. The same is true of the Gang of Six. And the August 2011 deficit agreement protected the program from sequestration. In his FY2012 and FY2013 budgets the President has included proposals to strengthen the program.

This is the time to strengthen, not weaken, our nation’s nutrition safety net. Americans want the government to attack hunger aggressively, and they reject attempts to cut anti-hunger efforts. A January poll conducted by Hart Research for FRAC demonstrated broad support among Americans for the federal nutrition programs and opposition to cuts. Seven in 10 voters said the federal government should have a major role in ensuring that low-income families and children have the food and nutrition they need. Seventy-seven percent of voters said that cutting SNAP would be the wrong way to reduce government spending.

As the Chairwoman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, you are in a key leadership role on these issues. We urge you to work with your colleagues in the Senate to strengthen and support SNAP - our nation's first line of defense against hunger.
